Face Entrapment—Allies
Move Up Rome Road

While the Allied forces threatened to outflank the German "Gustav Line" in Italy, 250,000 of Hitler's best troops faced entrapment in Russia near Leningrad where the Red Army's great surge to the south from the beleaguered city has virtually freed Russia's Baltic fleet which had been locked in port for more than two years.

French troops, crossing the Rapido River in difficult mountain fighting, have captured the foot of Mt. Il Lago, north of Cassino, and are threatening to outflank the Germans' "Gustav Line" of defense in Italy, Allied headquarters announced today.

British Fifth Army forces, supported by the fire of cruisers and destroyers, smashed forward along the Apennine Way, capturing Minturno, 76 miles from Rome, and taking 300 prisoners. They are assaulting the twin Nazi defensive villages of Vastelforte and Ventosa on the slopes of 1,000-foot Mt. Santi Cosma E Damiano, six miles inland from the Tyrrhenian.

Another German Line

In weather which German prisoners described as "worse than Leningrad," American patrols of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army slashed across the river below Cassino in probing expeditions and retired. Eighth Army patrols also were active in weather that was growing colder.

Although the French push from captured Sant' Elia, north of Cassino, if continued would allow them to take Cassino from the rear, German prisoners said there was another German line of fortifications called the "Adolf Hitler Line," six miles behind the Gustav belt which the Allies are now attacking.

Cruisers and destroyers of the British navy engaged in heavy action against Nazi shore defenses along the western end of the line, throwing several hundred rounds of steel ahead of the Fifth Army attack last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Minturno was taken by the British after "hard fighting," the communiqué said.

Heavy and medium bombers again struck at German airfields and communications in central Italy, striking damaging blows at Ciampino and Centocelle airfields near Rome for the second day in succession, and blasting Guidonia airfield, 14 miles north-east of Rome.

The airfield and railroad yards at Viterbo, 40 miles northwest of Rome were hit, and planes supported the Fifth Army attack.

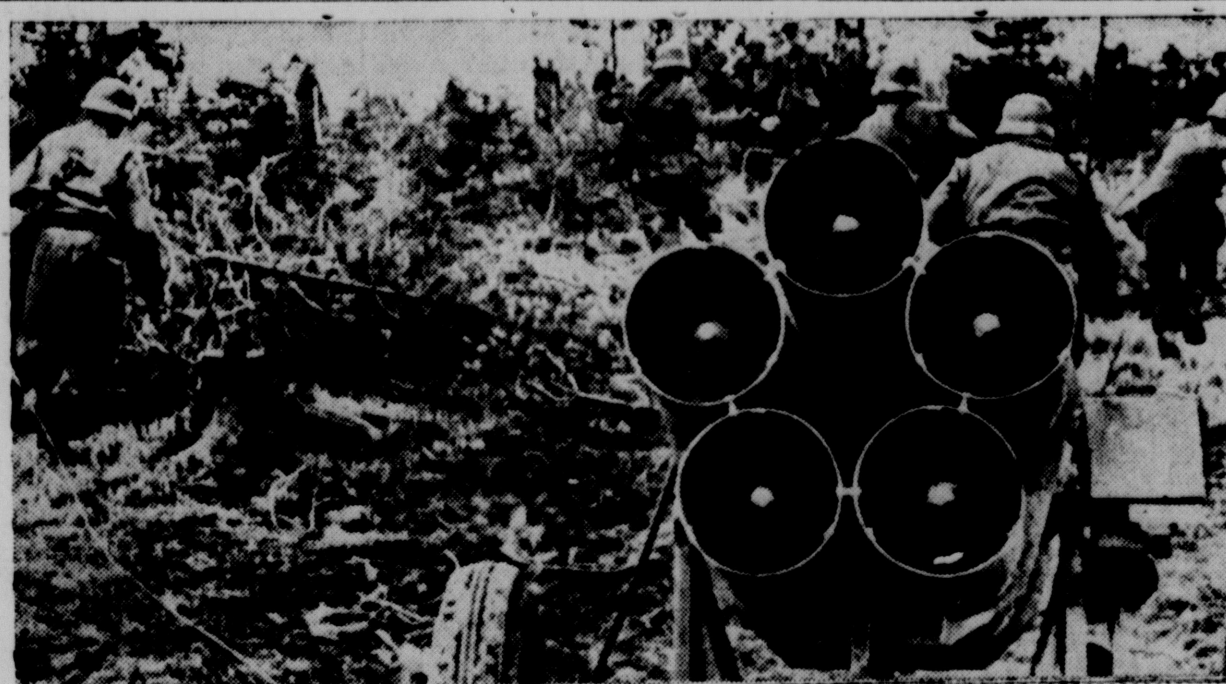

RAF Kittyhawks left two German ships ablaze off the Yugoslav coast.

The lack of enemy fighter opposition was illustrated by the fact that Capt. Harold L. Busenbarger of Osborn, O., operations officer for an A-36 invader squadron, was credited with shooting down the only German plane seen during 90 minutes of attacks on military targets in the Rome area.

Two Allied planes were lost yesterday, compared with five of the enemy.

NEW TAX BILL
TAKING FORMVariety of Politics Shares
Capital Spotlight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)

The Senate opened its doors an hour earlier than usual today and prepared to install in the new tax bill once and for all, a revised war contracts renegotiation law.

Unanimous approval by the finance committee had given the liberalization of present renegotiation statutes a powerful shove toward Senate adoption. But objections are still expected to the tacking on of the revisions to the $2,275,600,000 added revenues bill.

As it stands, the revision sets next December 31 as a tentative date for terminating renegotiation. Dissatisfied contractors could appeal decisions and contracts aggregating less than $500,000 a year would be exempt.

Revenue sections of the tax bill have been approved by the Senate. A conference committee of senators and representatives will adjust any items remaining in dispute.

FDR Just Too Busy

President Roosevelt is expected to give scant heed to fourth term drums being beaten by some members of the Democratic national committee and may not even send an official message to the committee's meeting in Washington.

Mad About Russia

Bi-partisan backers of United States participation in postwar rehabilitation today pressed their campaign despite a challenge that proposed contributions of monies totaling $1,350,000,000 would help Stalin become dictator of Europe. Rep. Jessie Sumner R. III expressed belief the Red leader would gain control of most of the liberated countries of Europe by exercising control over relief supplies.

Log Jam Breaking

A compromise measure on the soldier vote received Senate support today in several quarters and despite its provisions for a federal ballots, the leaving of vote-counting to state control drew favor from some champions of states' rights. Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) predicts it will be approved by the Senate.

New Industry May Center In Ohio
When Oil Made From Coal After War

By EARL BERKLEY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Ohio is in line to become a center of a great new industry—production of oil from coal.

Even in war, the program has gone beyond the idea stage and proponents are urging quick congressional approval of legislation authorizing exploratory action by the Bureau of Mines.

The bill (S1243), already passed by the Senate, would authorize construction of demonstration plants to undertake actual production of liquid fuels from coal and other substances, all plentiful in the Buckeye state.

Rep. Earl Lewis (R-Ohio) said he had been assured Ohio was being considered as a logical site for one of the plants. He quoted a letter from Director R. R. Sayers of the Bureau of Mines saying Ohio coals would be among those tested as to adaptability in the process of oil production.

Submarine torpedoes and aerial bombs were credited today with sinking a Japanese light cruiser and six more merchant vessels in the Allied war against enemy shipping.

DISILLUSIONED BOYS
GET FAR FROM HOMELeft Cold of Ohio To Swim
In Sunny South

MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Three disillusioned boys who left their homes in Toledo, O., because they said they "got tired of the cold and wanted to come down south and have some fun," awaited arrival of their parents in the county jail today.

The three lads, Jim Brockman, 13, Ben Bolt and John Dismant, 13, were taken into the Bibb County sheriff's office Wednesday evening exhausted after a footless day.

Officers picked them up as they trudged along the road toward Atlanta.

When they were brought here they had swimming trunks, a pistol, hunting knives, a Bible, and no food.

Asked why they had gotten off the bus in Marietta, the boys explained they saw a "good mountain" outside the town.

They said they just wanted to go swimming, explore mountains and pick oranges and cotton.

'War Is Not Nearly Over'
But Plans Are Made Now
For Peacetime Industry

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today total production for war is increasing, not diminishing, but the War Department is actively planning for prompt return of industry to peacetime production with as little dislocation as possible.

Asserting that industrial reconversion will be "at least as difficult, and will take at least as long," as the original conversion to war production, Patterson told the United States conference of mayors, "the planning we now do for reconversion is in the nature of insurance."

The War Department does not consider the war nearly over, Patterson told the mayors, but added, "We must now begin to think about the world after the war if we are not to lose the fruits of the very victory for which we are fighting."

"We must consider what demobilization will do to our domestic economy, and through it to the economy of the world," Patterson said in his prepared address.

A revision to pre-war industrial conditions, the undersecretary asserted, would result in a 50 percent reduction in the national income, extensive unemployment, and reduced factory capacity.

NEW FIGHTER PLANE
DEVELOPED FOR U. S.

DAYTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Materiel Command at Wright Field reports development of a new fighter plane—the P-70—which mounts four fixed forward-firing 20-millimeter cannon in the nose instead of the bombardier's "greenhouse."

The ship is a converted model of the Douglas A-20-A "Havoc" bomber, and now, black-painted, it is unofficially named the "Midnight Mauler."

The announcement said the P-70 had been under development by the Douglas Aircraft Co. and the Materiel Command for a year, and was in mass production.

The P-X carries a two-man crew and is powered by two Wright cyclone engines.

'TERRIFIC SHORTAGE' OF OIL PREDICTED

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21.—(AP)

"A terrific oil shortage" was predicted today by Warren C. Platt, editor of The National Petroleum News, weekly trade journal published here.

Platt charged army and navy officials were not permitting the facts to become known to the public and asserted an oil shortage had been caused by refusal of the government to permit producers to raise prices to encourage more production.

He also predicted a further decrease in gasoline rations within six months.

YANKS ATTACK

Biggest Raid Yet

By The Associated Press

Upwards of 2,240 tons of bombs were cast upon Berlin in 20 terrible minutes last night and today, American heavy and medium bombers resumed the air battle with attacks on the Pas de Calais invasion coast of northern France.

Wave upon wave of American bombers and RAF formations struck the French coast. Probably more than 700 British bombers mauled Berlin in the most concentrated assault in history with 100 tons of explosives raining upon the doomed German capital per minute.

The RAF gave Berlin the greatest blow of the eleven in a two-month obliteration campaign last night, before American heavy bombers continued the offensive with more attacks on the mysterious Pas-de-Calais area of the northern French coast.

The new attack on German military installations in France started at dawn with streams of RAF fighter-bombers and fighters streaking across the channel. Soon afterward great formations of U. S. Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by Thunderbolts and Lightnings, dived on the 20-mile stretch of water, returning in mid-afternoon.

Explosives tumbled on Berlin from the big bellies of the black-winged bombers at the rate of 100 tons a minute.

This was 13 more tons per minute than fell upon Brunswick in the previous record concentration of January 11.

The massive 11th blow in the two-month battle of Berlin was struck by a procession of four-engined bombers which took off

Management Demanded

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 21.—(AP)—"We must repudiate governmental administrative management" if private business is to provide post war jobs for all who wish to work, Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio believes.

The candidate for the Republican presidential nomination said last night government "regulation" will be necessary, but added:

"There is a vast difference between regulation and regimentation. Political ownership or management of business, of agriculture, of commerce and industry has no place in our free economy."

The governor, urging immediate adoption of specific post-war reconstruction plans to stabilize employment, declared the "job creating impulses of our economic system depend upon confidence in the future."

CONFERENCE FOR GRANGE OFFICES NEXT TUESDAY

Chaffin School Set for County Officers Meeting

Grange officers and home economics committees will meet next Tuesday in Chaffin School for the annual conference. It was decided at the Fayette Grange meeting in the Grange hall Thursday night.

The master, lecturer and overseer of all six granges in the county are particularly asked to attend the conference by those who are planning the meeting and they hope all other Grange officers will be present as well.

Mrs. Loren Hynes, deputy juvenile matron and county chairman of home economics committee, urges "all members of the home economics committees of the various granges to be present."

The meeting will begin at 6:30 P.M. with a potluck supper, after which each group of officers will meet separately.

Mrs. Darrell Weinrich, chairman of the McCoy sale dinner committee, discussed the menu of the lunch which will be served by the Fayette Grange at the McCoy sale next Thursday.

Sausage, hamburger and weiner sandwiches, bean soup, pie, doughnuts and coffee will be served by two crews of women. Nearly 5,000 people are expected to attend the sale.

Officers installed at the meeting Thursday are headed by Robert Terhune as master, Ralph Nisley, retiring county deputy, was installing officer. Harold Hewitt acted as installing marshal and Helen Louise Hynes and Drexel Hynes were regalia and emblem bearers.

Other officers installed were Overseer, Roscoe Haines; lecturer, Mrs. Darrell Weinrich; steward, Roy Coile; assistant steward, Glenn Moore; chaplain, Mrs. Roscoe Haines; treasurer, Mrs. Harold McCord; secretary, Mrs. Charles Fultz; gate keeper, Tom Graves; Ceres, Miss Jane Fultz; Pomona, Miss Helen Chitt; Flora, Mrs. Doris Diffendall; lady assistant steward, Miss Leona Hewitt and executive committee, Delbert Hays.

Ralph Nisley conferred the badge and insignia of the state master on the new county deputy, Loren Hynes and Mrs. Hynes. Coming as a complete surprise, Nisley said the presentations were the first made to an incoming deputy by a retiring deputy in Grange history of the county. In responding to the presentation, Hynes asked for the cooperation of all the granges and mentioned the 12 years of service record set by Nisley as being a great responsibility to live up to.

New committees appointed by Master Robert Terhune were home economics, headed by Mrs. Harold Hewitt with Mrs. Glenn Griffith, Mrs. Clarence Campbell, Mrs. Delbert Hays and Mrs.

Servicemen In County To Get Introduction Cards From Legion Post Here

Veterans of the first World War, who know from personal experience what a handshake and bit of friendliness can mean to a boy far from home, are doing something about it for the boys of the second one.

The Paul H. Hughes Post of the American Legion has 2,000-plus little light green "introduction" cards of a size suitable to fit into billfold pockets all printed up and ready to be filled out with the names and addresses of men in the service. But, post officers are confronted with an admittedly vexing problem when it comes to getting them in the hands of servicemen.

Herbert E. Wilson, the post commander, said the post's list of Fayette County men now in the armed forces contained more than 1,900 names, many of which have not been put on the honor roll on the Court House lawn yet. How many are in foreign service and how many still in training camps and bases in this country is conjectural, he said, but declared Legionnaires here would like to get cards to every one of them—if some way could only be found to do it.

So, lacking any better way, Wilson said, "I guess we'll just have to count on the families of these boys to lend a hand. . . and they ought to be more than glad to do that because it will mean so much to them."

Bearing the insignia of the Legion in the left hand corner and that of the Auxiliary in the right with a boxed "Hospitality Card" printed between them, the introduction is addressed "to all posts and auxiliary units of the American Legion" and says:

"It is a privilege to introduce to you (name of serviceman filled in blank space) who has left us to serve in the armed forces of our country. It will be appreciated if you will extend to the bearer of this card all courtesy and hospitality." The card bears the signature of the commander of the post, its number and location.

Arrangements have been made, the commander said, to have someone in the office of the new Legion home on North Fayette Street on Saturday afternoons for the next several weeks between 1 and 5 P.M. to fill out the cards either for the men in the service themselves if they happen to be home or for members of their families who come in and get them for mailing soldiers, sailors, marines or coast guardsmen wherever they may be. Wilson said he hoped families of service men would get these cards and send them to the boys and reiterated that they would be a big help to them in making friends of the right kind in strange cities.

The "hospitality cards" are being given to servicemen by Legion posts all over the country and most of them have arranged to extend the hospitality of their club rooms to men in uniform. The cards, Wilson said, serve the purpose of giving that "added personal touch which means so much."

The post here is open in the afternoons and nearly every night. For the weary traveling serviceman, there are sandwiches and soft drinks or coffee usually ready in the canteen of the new home. And, a helping hand is always outstretched.

BERLIN MAULED AGAIN BY BOMBERS AND YANKS HIT COAST NEXT DAY

almost in daylight and took three-quarters of an hour to cross the channel on the 600-mile flight to central Germany.

They returned before midnight with 35 bombers missing from this and other operations.

The great Berlin raid, the first since January 2, set huge fires through the capital where three-fourths of the important facilities already are believed destroyed.

Clouds blocked the defenders' searchlights, and blanketed their fighters.

But Swedish reports said anti-aircraft batteries put up an unprecedented barrage and the RAF suffered the second highest loss of the Berlin campaign.

The British Press Association said it was understood the raiding force was the biggest yet sent against the German capital, although the bomb tonnage was not as great as the 2,300 long tons (2,576 U. S. tons) dropped on November 22.

A total of around 16,000 tons of explosives now has been hurled upon the city since the start of sustained effort to eliminate the German capital.

The RAF's first reports of the raid echoed with a grim refrain. The Air Ministry communique said "large fires were left burning, smoke rising to a great height."

Twin-engined Mosquitos laid down a feint bombardment of targets in northwestern Germany, and fleets of minelayers again visited German waters.

It was the 105th attack of the war on Berlin.

In another night foray, Canadian Albatrosses swooped down on two Nazi destroyers in the channel and set one ablaze. One Canadian plane was lost.

The night attack which broke a 10-night lull in the assault on Europe also was the signal for an end to the five-day daylight respite, and RAF fighter-bombers swept out across the channel toward northern France at dawn followed by Spitfire formations.

Taking off almost before dark, the RAF fleet hit Berlin about 7 o'clock after plowing through one of the heaviest flak barrages ever thrown up over the capital.

Dispatches to Sweden said the Nazis had been steadily augmenting the number of anti-aircraft batteries about the city in a last attempt to stem the relentless obliteration of the capital.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

It's indeed a long stretch of Italy's ancient Appian Way that has no turning, and Uncle Sam's mud-caked Fifth army may at last have found the twist which, so to speak, will bring it within sight of the objective of hellish months of battling both Germans and weather—the eternal city of Rome.

This encouraging vantage point has been reached by the breaching of the Hitlerite line north of the Garigliano River—a difficult and dangerous operation which forced the enemy to abandon the city of Minturno, strategic communications center and stronghold in the Fifth army achieved this by driving spearheads across this natural water barrier, on both side of Minturno, in the face of fierce German counter-attacks.

Minturno is some 76 miles from Rome, as the bee would measure the course. That's about a twenty minute flight for a passenger plane, but it can be a mighty long distance for an army to fight its way—and likely will be. However, one of our toughest obstacles—the winter weather—would seem to be weakening.

The experts say the worst of it probably is past, which gives promise that Allied progress will be eased.

When British Premier Churchill returned to the House of Commons this week—at his jovial best after his tilt with pneumonia in the Middle East—Sir Herbert William asked if the Prime Minister was aware of any "false optimism" voiced in a recent speech in which General Sir Bernard Montgomery indicated the probable early capture of Rome (your columnist hadn't placed such interpretation on Montgomery's remarks).

I don't know about false optimism," Churchill replied. "There has been a lot of bad weather."

Some observers like to think that Rome will be in Allied hands by spring, but caution reminds us that there are some tough obstacles to be surmounted before we reach that happy goal with land troops, though our bombers are finding the going easy enough, as witness the assaults on the city yesterday and day before. We shall be unexpectedly lucky if we are able to do much free-wheeling along the Appian Way towards the capital until the long Allied line has advanced another half hundred miles or so northward.

The American Fifth army must occupy the high ground beyond Frosinone in order to get set for the final dash to Rome (maps please). At the same time the British Eighth army on the right flank will have to capture the heights north of Pescara on the Adriatic. We must expect this to entail much hard fighting, for the Germans have the advantage of the strong mountain positions in the center of the Italian Peninsula.

The further offensive may be speeded by amphibious operations along the coasts. As a matter of fact the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Aftonbladet yesterday reported that American forces were being landed at several points on the Gulf of Gaeta, behind the German line. There has been no confirmation or denial of this.

In any event, once the Allied machine has occupied those heights beyond Frosinone and Pescara it should be in a favorable position. Then our men may achieve their ambition of making speed along the Appian Way. They will be traversing a road which has resounded to the tramping feet of armies for more than two thousand years.

Appius Claudius, censor at Rome from 312 to 308 B. C., built this immortal military highway during that period. He thought so well of his creation that he called it "The Queen of Roads"—a name which still clings, and not without merit.

Unusual Services Planned at South Side Church of Christ

An unusual service being arranged for Sunday night at the South Side Church of Christ, is expected to draw an unusually large audience, and will be based on customs followed in pre-Civil War days.

Rev. Edward J. Cain will be in charge of the unusual services. The church will be lighted with candles and the men will sit on one side of the church and the women on the other, in accordance with the old custom in churches generally.

The song leader will "line out" the hymns which will be sung after the fashion in the early days.

In the olden days the preacher's sermon was usually at least one and a half hours in length, but Rev. Cain has decided to condense this part of the service into a 25 minute sermon. He believes a 25 minute sermon will be more popular.

He will preach a sermon from Benjamin Franklin, who was a pioneer minister of the Church of Christ.

The subject sermon will be "Conversion, or Turning to God." There will be an exhibit of old Bibles, oddities in the way of Bibles, song books, and religious books generally.

Rev. Cain stresses the fact that the services will not be an entertainment, but will be conducted seriously and in the spirit of worship. He invites all who care to do so, to attend the services.

The services will begin at 7:30 P. M.

GOOD HOPE HIGH HITS SALVAGE GOAL

200 Students Worked for Nearly Two Months

Good Hope High School is the first in the county to qualify for the pennant awarded to each county school when it reaches its salvage quota. Superintendent Kenneth Craig said today.

The 200 students in the school collected two tons of iron, 100 pounds of fat, over a ton of paper and 5,000 tin cans to earn their pennant. The design of the flags is similar to the Army-Navy E awards given to war plants. No flags have been distributed to schools earning them so far.

Good Hope students have been collecting the scrap since the first of December.

NEW COPPER-ZINC PENNIES ARE MADE

While the new one-cent coins, made of copper and zinc, which resemble the pre-war pennies, have been put in circulation by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, none of them have reached Washington C. H. so far as known.

Bank officials have announced that because of the shortage of the "steel plug" pennies, they will remain in circulation for the present. When no longer needed they will be returned to the reserve bank and stored.

Man Had Brick In His Stomach for 10 Years
One man recently stated that for 10 years he felt like he had a brick in his stomach. This feeling was due to the lump of undigested food he always had inside of him. He was weak, worn out, headachy, swollen with gas and terribly constipated. Recently he started taking ERB-HELP and says the feeling like a brick in his stomach disappeared the second day. Bowels are regular now, gas and headaches are gone and he feels like a new man.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering. Get ERB-HELP. Finley's Drug Store.

What About Poland?

The British, we are told, are somewhat troubled because the Polish government-in-exile insists that pre-war Poland should be kept intact. This forces an issue that Britain, and also the United States, would like to duck. It is hard to see how it can be evaded.

The historical background seems clear. Eastern Poland originally was Russian. It was squeezed out of Russia soon after World War I and the Bolshevik revolution. It remained Polish, then, until 1939.

World War II started when France and Great Britain, after trying every possible placatory method of appeasing Hitler, at last informed him that attack upon Poland would be considered a cause for war. Knowing British military weakness and French impotency, and probably considering this warning to be another bluff, Hitler sent his blitzkrieg into Poland. One major reason he took this chance was his protective pact with Russia.

No sooner had the Nazis entered Poland from the west than the Reds came in from the east. They divided the country between them. For almost two years more Russia was an ally of Germany, against whom the British and French had declared war to protect their treaty ally, Poland. It was not until June, 1941, that Hitler attacked Russia, and turned her into an ally of Great Britain and, eventually, of the United States.

On July 30, 1941, according to report, Russia signed another pact of friendship with Poland. In this Stalin is said to have renounced all claim to the territory seized in September, 1939, in collusion with Germany. That includes the region which the Reds now are beginning to reclaim from the Nazis.

Moscow now, through its embassy in Washington, announces that the territory in question is hers and she is going to keep it. Her attitude seems to raise the question—what is anybody going to do about it? No mention is made of the renunciation executed in 1941, when Russia needed badly all possible assistance from Poland's friends, Britain and the United States.

The Polish government is disturbed. It protests. And apparently with reason. Winston Churchill says he did not become head of his majesty's government to preside over the empire's dismemberment. Perhaps the Polish government, which met disaster through trusting overmuch to Franco-British assistance, feels the same way.

After a Century of Freedom

Before the war most people held one hope in common: That their children would enjoy greater opportunities and live fuller lives than preceding generations. For more than 150 years that hope was realized because the people were free. But now for the first time in the history of the nation the future is proble-

Wherein An Officer 'Rescues' an MP

HELENA, Mont.—Like a couple of playful boys, two young soldiers began rolling snowballs when they saw an MP coming toward them on a Helena street.

They spotted a doorway, handy to dash into after their shots were fired, and they moved toward it.

Just then an officer stepped from the door. The privates had to drop their ammunition and salute. Meantime, the MP got away.

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday celebrant is adaptable, fond of good times, easy-going and somewhat apt to take things for granted. You enjoy traveling and will do a great deal of it. Your tendency toward selfishness will bring you unhappiness in later life unless you learn to curb it. Make the fullest use of the exceptionally favorable influence now operating. Push business to the utmost, but avoid indifference or carelessness liable to jeopardize good progress. The child born today will be remarkably clever in several directions, but threats exist of reversals through his or her own erratic conduct, often due to thoughtlessness and obstinacy.

matical, in spite of the fact that nearly 10,000,000 American men are under arms pledged to maintain American liberty.

We are faced with a bewildering growth of centralized government which is in no way incident to the war emergency. If present government planning is carried out, the lives of coming generations will be shaped in Washington instead of through individual effort.

Even now, agencies of government are planning the expenditure of billions of dollars to provide ready-made futures for the citizens of tomorrow. These futures, if realized, would consist largely of make-work jobs on government projects. In addition, there is steady pressure for the gradual broadening of socialization of industry—which would mean more ready-made futures, more jobs on the government payroll.

Individuals in every walk of life are voicing concern over expansion of the Federal government. Their fear is that coming generations will be deprived of the opportunities for personal achievement that have marked the history of this country. Not only individuals, but clubs, churches and civic organizations from one end of the land to the other, have organized to fight for the reestablishment of constitutional government.

Our future as free citizens is threatened—for the first time in a century and a half.

LAFF-A-DAY

Diet and Health

Vegetarian Theorists Versus Meat-eaters

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THESE days of food rationing, to judge by what you hear from your neighbors and acquaintances, vegetarianism doesn't seem to have made many converts. All that comes to me is a series of squawks about not getting enough meat.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Vegetarians, of course, differ among themselves, and they are vegetarians for many different reasons. There are those who have moral reasons. It is wrong to slaughter animals. No argument can be brought against that. Those who aver that the eating of meat brings the danger of disease lurking in animal flesh belong to another school. As do those who believe in vegetarianism as a means of promoting horticulture and getting us all back to an agricultural existence.

Little Scientific Basis

The poisonous nature or dangers of meat as an argument hasn't much scientific basis. One has only to adduce the studies of Thomas on "The Health of a Carnivorous Race," which were the Eskimos. They live exclusively on raw meat, and contrary to belief do not eat much fat or blubber. They are very healthy. High blood pressure or kidney disease is less prevalent among them than among us. Examining nearly two hundred Eskimos between the ages of 40 and 60, Thomas found the average blood pressure to be 129. They are very active and vigorous, so they must get vitamins from the meat.

Those who think that man's structure is designed for vegetarianism made a mistake. It would not be scientific to say that man cannot subsist on a veget-tarian diet for a long time and retain his faculties, as witness Bernard Shaw. Although, according to H. G. Wells, Shaw cheats: he has taken to using vitamin tablets lately and since some of them are of animal origin he doesn't call them food. He calls them—"Those chemicals."

Abundant Protein

Of the three primary food elements (excluding the vitamins and minerals) protein is found most abundantly in animal food. Fat also. Vegetables are predominant for the carbohydrates—sugars and starches. But all vegetables contain some protein, and many contain a great deal—wheat flour, cereals, beans, peas and nuts. So we can get proteins from vegetables. These vegetable proteins, however, do not act as readily in the bodily economy as animal proteins. They are not economical proteins.

So while it is possible to live and thrive on an exclusively vegetable diet, there is no support for the argument that it is a superior method of nutrition. It isn't.

But the really tough argument for the vegetarian to get over centers in the recent wartime experiments on isocaloric meals for war workers.

A set of workers were given breakfasts which were successively, for certain periods, first, almost entirely carbohydrate; second, almost entirely fat; and third, a little over half protein, a third carbohydrate and the rest fat. Then their efficiency was charted.

The carbohydrate breakfast kept them going for about two hours and then they slumped and complained about hunger and weakness.

The protein breakfast mixed with some carbohydrates and fat resulted in no let-up or diminution in vigor for six hours.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
CARLOS WAS right, Mallory knew. They did "speak to each other without words." She had known that from the moment she first saw him. That is, she had known there was a bond, a painfully sweet one, but it had taken Carlos to voice it.

"Is that not the way it is, Mallory? We need no words?"

"Yes," she answered breathlessly. "That is the way it is."

"Another reason I do not talk so much," he explained in a slow manner, "is that my English is not the best. Not so perfect as Manuella's. For I am not so brilliant. I am too lazy. I did not study enough. Manuella has, naturally, the Spanish, French, Italian and the fast English. I have the Spanish, the French and the slow English."

He added apologetically, "When she is with me I give her the talking."

"I think your English is wonderful, Carlos." And you, too, she yearned to say. "You are so wonderful that simply gazing into your eyes makes me feel as if I'm drowning." Such a wave of warmth flooded over her that she wondered why she ever had thought the night chilly.

She lowered her head and closed her eyes while Carlos led her about the crowded dance floor. How long had it been since she had danced? Really danced? Years, she knew, because soon after she met Tod Patrick he had taught her the dangers of ruining her voice. He did not know, of course, about the times she danced alone in her own bedroom. Practicing, it should be called, for she was determined to remember all steps and to learn new ones. She knew why now. It was to dance with Carlos some day.

She glanced up at him now, fighting that drowning sensation with deep breaths, as though it were a stage fight bugaboo.

"The music, Carlos? What is it called?"

"Vieja Tropical. One of our popular songs. Not new, but still loved."

"I can understand why. It touches my heart."

"I want to touch your heart, Mallory."

"As if you didn't," she whispered weakly. "As if you didn't, Carlos. You touch it so much it hurts."

He whispered back, "Then everything is all right, for mine hurts also. Mine is going to learn more English. For you, I want to be able to call you all the lovely names in English that I am thinking in Spanish—Princesita, Querida—"

"Don't bother to learn the English, Carlos. I much prefer the names you've just said."

Mallory had nothing to drink except Ponche Caliente—a hot punch flavored with many spices and rose leaves—yet she felt as if she were gayly intoxicated on champagne. She wanted to remember everything about the night. The stars that seemed to be cut out from gilt paper, glued against the black skies, glittering brightly until one looked at the still brighter glitter of the fiesta.

She wanted to remember the strange texture of the air, a combination of mellowness and briskness and its spicy perfume from dew-spattered fresh green grass; from the heavy fragrance of flowers, both on bushes and on the trays of the salesgirls; from the perfume itself on the women guests.

She wanted to remember the sound of melodious Spanish voices that mingled so correctly with the Spanish music of the orchestra. And the proud, fierce Indians jingling about in their dance costumes. The strolling musicians, troubadour types, guitars slung over their shoulders. Even those touts about whom Manuella had made derogatory remarks, who now went around in fast circles, clutching fistful of food, "getting their money's worth." She wanted to remember everything about the night because it was one in millions.

"There'll never be another night like this, Carlos." She was amazed and annoyed to feel hot tea in her eyes.

"But, yes. There will be many nights like this for us."

Mallory smiled, knowing that he was wrong. Those captured moments of perfection were never recaptured.

She was wearing the same dress she had worn to the press conference. Its velvet weight, added to the warmth from the exercise of dancing, were sufficient to keep her comfortable. But, when the music ceased, she quickly picked up her fur coat, from its place on the back of a garden chair and hugged it about her. The collar she turned up high about her priceless throat. Although it was scant protection, she again donned the lace head shawl. Carlos was watching her uncertainly.

"I rarely dance," she said, as if that explained her behavior.

"You are joking. You would have to dance often to dance as you do. Why, you are like the sunbeams dancing across a patio."

"Thank you, Carlos." Naturally the girl did not tell him that her bedroom solo dance sessions were responsible for her ability. "But it is true. Dancing is a disipation for me. You see, I must not catch cold. A cold is worse than a dragon in my life. Right now I shall have to keep walking for several minutes."

"I am to blame."

"No, you're not, Carlos. I wanted to dance." She slipped her hand through his arm. "And even if I do catch a cold, it was worth it."

The man still looked unhappy. "No, I have made for you the danger."

"Have make for you the danger" was right. Mallory was certain of that as she lay in bed early Sunday morning, thinking back on the previous night, contemplating the future. Yes, Carlos truly was doing just that. And he would continue doing it, because she realized for the first time she was considering a man before she considered herself. There was no escape, that is, unless she could control her own emotions, an unlikely matter.

Reviewing Saturday night, Mallory remembered that no one had said much on the return trip. Somehow Carlos had managed to sit between Manuella and the blond girl. He managed also to hold Mallory's hand. If Manuella saw, she gave no evidence. She just dropped her head to the luxurious car cushions and nuzzled lightly. Occasionally she turned her head, perhaps only her eyes, to give that little haughtily amused smile of hers.

The ring of the telephone jarred the early Sunday morning hush. The region around Mallory's heart felt warm and sweet. Yet she pretended to be asleep when Primm came in to summon her. Usually she would have called out, "Who is it?" Not this time, however. She wanted every thrill connected with Carlos' first telephone call.

Primm eyed the girl. "I doubt very much if you are 'factually asleep.' But in case you are—" Her soft tones turned to a roar. "Get on the phone. The Ericsson one." The girl slid from bed and headed toward the living room with a nimbleness that made Primm mutter, "Heck no, you wasn't sleeping. I was right, 'bout that." She muttered on, "Never know when phone to pick up in this town. I always wished they was two companies in our own country. Many's the time I wished it. I'd show 'em. Here, I got my wish and I ain't showin' nobody nothin'. I can't even 'familiarate' myself with two phones." She leaned against the wall to listen to her mistress' conversation.

Mallory Baker's voice was butler and princess. "Hello?"

"Hi, honey."

She straightened indignantly. Her ears knew they were not being rewarded with the deep silver voice of Carlos, yet they could not recognize the person who spoke so intimately. Princesita, a dulcet princess, she would have known and loved. Princesa, in clipped English, was unknown and unloved.

"Who is this?" Her manner was suddenly as cold as winter on Lake Michigan.

"This," alashed the strange man, "is the guy whose irresistibility had you dangling half out of an automobile last night."

"Oh!" Enthusiasm brightened her words. "Oh!" She said again. "I must see you, Mr. Blythe."

"So you told me last night. Meet me for breakfast," he commanded dryly, "at Sanborn's, in an hour." He hung up.

His decree angered the singer. For an instant she stood there holding the telephone, helpless against its deadness. No preliminaries. No, "Are you free?" "Would you care to have breakfast with me?" "Could you meet me in an hour?" None of those remarks.

All the same, Mallory met him at the prescribed time. Armando drove her to the old House of Ties—now Sanborn's famous establishment—and parked nearby to wait.

Richard Blythe's greeting was so pleasant that it glossed over his recent curtness and forced the girl to greet him in fully as pleasant a manner. They sat down and ordered. Warm sweet rolls, fresh strawberries and cream, hot chocolate. The kind that is flavored with cinnamon and beaten to a froth with a wooden beater.

"Now," Richard Blythe finally asked, leaning toward Mallory, "what's the trouble?" Just then his eyes swerved past hers. A grin lifted his mouth. His voice, when he spoke, held that lightness directed toward persons often contacted.

He said, "Hi, John. Hi, Bill."

Washington at a Glance

By HOWARD FLIEGER

WASHINGTON — History will show (if anybody ever bothers to look it up) that Congress still was talking last session 13 days after members locked up the place and went home for Christmas.

It sounds a little spooky. But like a detective thriller, it's all worked out in the back of the book—the word-brimming Appendix to the Congressional Record.

The first session of the 78th Congress adjourned in mid-afternoon on Dec. 21. But the members hadn't had their last say—not by 65,520 words. The debate lives on in the Appendix.

Here's how:
On the final day of the session House Majority Leader McCormack (D-Mass.) obtained unanimous consent for members to extend their remarks in the Appendix of the Record on any subject pending at the time of the recess.

comparative quiet on Capitol Hill 20 members had their say on just about everything.

Glance at the Appendix that grew on the last short day of Congress and you'll get the idea.

Rep. Ramey (R-Ohio) starts off with a floor speech entitled "New Congress Should Take Up Most Serious Problems First. This comes the extension of appropriately sub-titled remarks.

For example:
Rep. Angell (R-Ore.): "Oregon Helps Feed The World"; Rep. J. Leroy Johnson (R-Calif.) "Personal Impressions Gained on Trip to Central and South America with A Sub-committee of the Committee on Military Affairs"; Rep. Rabaut (D-Mich.) "Fortieth Anniversary of First Airplane Flight at Kitty Hawk, N. C."

Rep. Cochran (D-Mo.) paid a tribute to "Twelfth Member of St. Louis Family Enters Armed Forces." and Rep. Hagen (F-L-Minn.) argued for "A Square Deal Needed Now for Star Route Mail Carriers." Angell put in a poem written by a soldier-constituent now in New Guinea and Hagen included some verses composed by a Navy officer with the Air Transport Command.

The Appendix fits on the back of the Congressional Record. In its pages members make long speeches, argue back and forth and repeat editorials from home town papers—all without uttering a word on the floor.

By getting permission to "extend and revise remarks" a Congressman can convert a floor speech from the halting phrases of extemporaneous debate into flowing prose. He can "extend" for columns in the Appendix that which originated as a 100-word oration on the floor.

If he likes the finished product well enough he can order copies printed (at his own expense) and send them to his friends back home. The Appendix is a magic territory. A reporter friend, flipped through its pages the other day and defined it as "an oratorical island lying due south of the Record proper."

Men's Bowling Race Tied Up In Round of Hot Matches

The Men's City League lead was in a deadlock again after Thursday night's bowling on the Main Street alleys.

The Mt. Sterling boys wiped out the slight lead held by the Coca Colas when they won the last two games from the Pure Oilers after dropping the opener by 19 pins while the Cokes were losing two out of three to the Producers.

The Mt. Sterling outfit was definitely on the beam and they had to stay there because the Pure Oilers kept the heat on from start to finish. For keen competition, this match proved to be one of the season's standouts. The Mt. Sterling boys won the last two games by such narrow margins—the second by a mere two pins and the last by only one—that the 19 pin advantage the Pure Oilers took in the opener gave them the total score honors. Consistency, rather than spotty individual high scores, marked the match.

The Coca Cola-Producer match started out like a house afire but the Producers pulled away in the finale. The Producers won the opener by four pins and the Cokes took the second by the last duck which toppled into the pit.

Pennington's Bakers made a clean sweep of their match with the Slagle and Kirk outfit and the slipping Jefferson Ringers lost two out of three to the Stone Crushers from Melvin. The Ringers barely escaped a whitewash when they took the second game by four pins.

BASEBALL BUDDING IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Ohio State League is ready to grant franchises to six cities and possibly to make out its 1944 schedule of games at a meeting here next Sunday, President Joe Donnelly reported today, adding that the Class D league's prospects were bright.

The season probably will open early in May and close, Labor Day of the following Sunday, Donnelly said. He listed these cities as certain members: Newark, Springfield, Zanesville, Lima, Middletown and Marion.

He returned from visiting baseball men in those cities with a report all would have major league backing, Newark by the Cincinnati Reds, Springfield by the New York Giants, Lima by the St. Louis Browns, Zanesville by the Brooklyn Dodgers, Middletown by the Boston Red Sox and Marion either by Detroit or the Philadelphia Nationals.

Revival of the Ohio State loop in the face of curtailed baseball operations elsewhere because of drafting of players and travel restrictions has attracted widespread interest.

sunk or probably sunk nearly 20 merchant ships, three destroyers, two cruisers and more than 100 barges or luggers.

Premier Hideki Tojo possibly had the recent sinkings in mind when he told the Japanese Diet today Japan's shipping losses "cannot by any means be minimized."

In fact, he said, it has prompted government efforts to reduce the toll "by strengthening the sea and air protection."

The Tokyo radio quoted Tojo as saying that Japan, unlike the Allies, prefers a long war, with time to build up her strategic positions. He declared the empire had a "golden opportunity" to strike the Allies "greater, smashing blows," but said he was compelled to renew his recent plea for a stepup in aircraft production.

In the southwest Pacific the Allies sent more than 100 fighters to challenge the enemy over Wewak, New Guinea, shooting down 12 enemy planes against a loss of three.

The Japanese, however, refused to fight the next day when 50 Liberator heavy bombers came over Wewak with 133 tons of explosives.

Nipponese interceptors rose to meet south Pacific medium bombers and fighters in a raid Tuesday on Tobera Airbase of Rabaul, but the effort cost them 21 planes.

which in six days have lifted the two-year siege of Leningrad, captured the ancient bastion of Novgorod and slain 40,000 Germans, rolled on today in an effort to complete entrapment of upwards of 250,000 other Germans remaining in the Leningrad sector.

Dispatches from Moscow indicated the Germans were facing one of their worst disasters since Stalingrad.

Capture yesterday of Novgorod, 100 miles southeast of Leningrad, by Gen. K. A. Meretskov's army opened the road to Lake Peipus and southern Estonia. The city had been in German hands since August, 1941.

Other Red Army forces in the Leningrad sector under Gen. Leonid A. Govorov were reported to have encircled large units of enemy troops in the 50-square-mile Strelina corridor, running north from the Krasnoye Selo sector to the Gulf of Finland.

The Soviet war bulletin said spearheads of Govorov's forces were less than nine miles from Krasnogvardeisk, rail junction directly south of Leningrad, through which enemy troops would be

Intramural Basketball Is Started at High School

Eight teams of high school boys swung into action on the gymnasium floor Thursday night to pry the lid off of the intramural basketball schedule with four games that brought out just about every kind of play, from very good to fantastic and dull.

From now on through the next six weeks, the yells of youngsters will echo through the gym as the cagers get together either on Thursday or Tuesday nights.

Each of the four high school classes is represented by two teams and the schedule has been drawn up for each team to meet every other to decide the champion and winner of the trophy.

Members of the Blue Lion and reserve squads act as coaches and officials under the watchful eyes of the coaches, George Miraben and Jerry Kissell.

Not one of the four games was a walkaway and a couple of forced to withdraw toward Estonia to escape capture.

Govorov sealed off the Strelina corridor at a point 20 miles southwest of Leningrad after seizing the town of Strelina itself, 10 miles across the bay from Leningrad.

Meretskov's troops were pushing westward from Novgorod and latest reports placed them more than 10 miles along the roads to Estonia.

In addition to the 40,000 Germans the Russians said they had slain, 4,000 more were reported captured.

The Russians reported capture of 265 guns in the Leningrad sector since January 14, when their offensive was launched, including 85 heavy siege guns which had been shelling the city. Other material taken included 30 tanks, 159 mortars, 274 machine-guns and 18 ammunition dumps.

During the same period Meretskov's troops on the Volkov front captured 182 guns, 120 mortars, 635 machine-guns, 263 trucks, 21 tractors and 25 dumps. They destroyed 178 guns, 15 tanks, 100 mortars, 365 machine-guns and 350 trucks, the communique asserted.

Far to the south, Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's First Ukrainian Army hurled back German attacks north of Khristinovka, where the Russians have been stalled in their drive toward the Odessa-Warsaw railway and Rumacia.

recommends passage to aid prosecution of the war and to conserve and increase the oil resources of the country.

The committee said there was little basis for contentions the legislation would put the government in competition with private industry.

The sole purpose, advocates say, is for the government to initiate a program to be carried forward by private enterprise.

Interior Secretary Ickes has recommended passage of the bill.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—AP—Wheat displayed a relatively strong undertone today, supported by buying from local traders. The continued dry weather over most of the Mid-west, coupled with government demand for flour, was the major factor in the strength.

The firmness of the bread cereal was not reflected in other grains. At one time rye was about a cent, but the market broke quickly when traders attempted to sell out rye bought earlier in the session. Prices fell below yesterday's close. Oats and barley were unable to make any headway.

At the close wheat was 1/2 lower to 3/4 higher, May $1.70 1/2-3/4, oats were 1/2 lower to 3/4 higher, May $1.29 1/2-3/4, and barley was unchanged to 1/2 lower, May $1.21 1/2-3/4.

MEMOIR
In loving memory of our dear husband and father, George E. Roggens, who was killed January 21, 1942. He had no one to last farewell. He said goodbye to none, his loving heart.

Had ceased to beat, before we knew it, he was gone, he did not fail to do his best.

His heart was true and tender. He worked so hard for those he left, and will always be remembered by his wife and family.

Collett Murder Trial Postponed To February 28

CHANGE IS MADE UPON REQUEST OF THE DEFENSE

Motion by Defense To See Collett Confession Is Sustained

Upon request of defense counsel trial of the first degree murder charges against James W. Collett for the cold-blooded slaying of Elmer McCoy, Mrs. McCoy and their daughter, Mildred Louise, Thanksgiving eve, was Friday forenoon changed from February 14 to Monday, February 28.

Attorney James N. Linton made the request, stating that by reason of an important case in the Supreme Court, it would be impossible for him to be present on the date originally set.

At the same session of court, Judge H. M. Rankin granted a motion filed by the defense counsel, ordering Prosecutor John B. Hill to show Collett's confession made in Toledo, in which Collett admitted killing Elmer McCoy, to defense counsel.

Prosecutor Hill had refused the request made January 12, and the motion to compel him to show the confession was filed by the defense Friday morning, and heard immediately thereafter, Linton having advised Prosecutor Hill by letter that the motion would be filed then.

Prosecutor Hill offered no objection to the court, simply stating that he had acted to protect himself in the case, when he had declined permission requested last week.

Judge Rankin also informed defense counsel that if they cared to be present when a special venire for use in the case is drawn, they would be notified, so they could be present. Linton said he appreciated the courtesy and asked to be notified.

In addition to Linton, Allen Smith and Charles Kirk, of Wilmington, also were present for the hearing, and Prosecutor Hill and Charles S. Hire represented the state.

Last week Judge Rankin overruled a defense motion for a bill of particulars in the case.

H. with the exception of a short time in Cincinnati following her last marriage.

County Courts

DIVORCE ASKED

Claiming the defendant has been guilty of gross neglect of duty and threatened to kill their children, George Cline, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court, asks divorce from Bessie Cline to whom he was married in Wilmington, Jan. 22, 1930.

Plaintiff claims defendant left him Jan. 14 taking two of their six children. He asks for custody of the children and other relief. Charles S. Hire represents the plaintiff.

DIVORCE GRANTED

Margie Whitmer has been granted a divorce from Clare L. Whitmer on grounds of neglect of duty and all household goods given to the plaintiff.

PIPELINE IS NOW READY FOR USE

Delays Are Caused by Many Breaks in Line

Secretary Ickes in a statement given out from Washington, D. C., said that while delay in completion of the "Little Big Inch" pipeline from Texas to the east had resulted from many breaks in the line, that the new conduit will begin limited operation within a day or two, and no later than next week.

Two-months delay resulted due to many breaks and inability in obtaining pumps, Ickes said.

Despite the increased flow of petroleum, placed at 300,000 barrels of gasoline daily in the new line and over 300,000 barrels daily of crude petroleum in the 24 inch completed last summer, Ickes said the gasoline situation in the east "is going to get worse before it gets better."

Work of paying claims is still under way in this part of Ohio, and most of the claims in Fayette County have been adjusted.

JUNK CHAIRMAN TRUSTEE BOARD OF MOUNT LOGAN

Reports Showing Condition Of T. B. Sanatorium Are Presented

Frank Junk, Ross County Commissioner and well known in Fayette County, was elected chairman of the board of trustees of Mt. Logan Tuberculosis Sanatorium at the reorganization meeting of the joint board held in Chillicothe this week, and attended by County Commissioners Jean Nisley, Homer Miller and Tom Parrett and Clark Rodgers, who has been a member of the board of trustees of the institution for many years.

The institution is under the control of six trustees, each appointed for six years, and consist of one person from each of the six counties which maintain the institution for tuberculosis sufferers.

The sanatorium is located on Carlisle Hill immediately west of Chillicothe.

The report of Miss Vesta E. Yaple, secretary-treasurer of the institution, shows the following amounts to be due from the participating counties at the end of the last quarter of 1943: Fayette, $1679.61; Highland, $781.92; Jackson, $7906.01; Pike, $4,089.51; Ross, $2,488.22; Scioto, $5,961.36.

Dr. B. L. Chiple is superintendent of the institution.

Fayette County had eight patients in the sanatorium during the last quarter—George McCoy, Carl L. Mitchem, Leona Long, John Woods, Homer Williams, Delores Evans, Charles Vest and Geneva Keels.

The State Examiners' report shows that Dr. Louis H. Senteff, medical superintendent of the hospital, has received $3,600 per annum and maintenance at the hospital, and Miss Vesta E. Yaple, secretary-treasurer, receives $1,200 per year but this has been increased to $1,500 per year.

TRUCK GASOLINE RATION DEADLINE IS EXTENDED

Announcement has been made by the Fayette County War Price and Rationing Board that the deadline of January 15, on truck transport gasoline rationing has been extended.

The board asks applications from Fayette County users be placed with the board at its office here at once.

$62,975 IN WAR BONDS BOUGHT IN THREE DAYS

Drive's Success Depends on Individual Bond Purchases

Putting Fayette County over its Fourth War Loan goal—$906,000—will depend not only on the 350 volunteer salesmen, but on the individual responsibility of each Fayette Countyman, F. E. Hill, chairman of the War Finance Committee said today.

So far, 375 people have put $62,975 into War Bonds. That leaves $843,025 to be purchased before February 15 if the quota is to be reached.

The threat of inflation, one of the greatest dangers threatening the home front, is ever-present with the increasing purchasing power of the individual and the decreasing stocks of goods available in stores. By buying more and more War Bonds with that surplus cash, price boosts can be trampled down.

Spending as usual in war time is just as dangerous as carrying a lighted match into a powder factory. Both are a form of senseless sabotage and both threaten the personal security of the careless individual as well as the safety of surrounding property and people, Hill said.

Governor Bricker has sent letters to heads of all state departments urging cooperation of all state employees in the drive.

Fayette County's receipts for the first week this year reached $1,673.54 compared with $2,015.94 for the same week last year.
